What to look for in a loan

JUGGLING a young family and a demanding career was the impetus for an Everton Park mum to start up a business that would help others in her boat.

Pip Danrell's online business, Corporate Mums, helps busy parents better control and organise their time.

Mrs Danrell has designed a series of organisational products including planners and information check-lists that are designed to help families find more time in their day.

The products also ensure important family information is readily available for an easy changeover to babysitters or other carers.

"By the time I had my second child I realised how under-valued and how important planning was."

The Corporate Mums range is available at eight retailers, including Mama's House in Windsor.

TIME MANAGEMENT: Pip Danrell takes some time out with her children Claudia, 6, Jack, 4, and Luke, 2.

MONEY MATTERS

Noel Whittaker

A USEFUL guide in choosing a mortgage is the comparison rate but keep in mind it is only a starting point.

Even though it includes the basic loan costs, such as set-up fees, interest rates and ongoing charges, it does not include certain bank fees, including early-termination fees and redraw fees.

One of the most important things is flexibility. You might believe a no-frills loan with low fees is perfect right now but it may not be appropriate if things change.

We're Australia's most recommended insurer. But you've probably already heard.

Apia is delighted to be named, for the second year in a row, Australia's most recommended insurance company! Not because we want to big-note ourselves, but because it means we're keeping our customers happy. So, if you're with Apia, thanks for putting in a good word for us. If you're not, give us a call and find out for yourself why people are talking about us.
